

HOT SCORN OF SUFFRAGISTS
UPON THE WOMEN WHO JOIN POLITICAL CLUBS.

They remind Mrs. Loebinger of Jack-daws and Mrs. Harper of mere consumers of tea. There's only one cause, and votes for men won't help.

There were dozens and dozens of blue and white porcelain teacups on the big table in the most conspicuous window in the Republican women's headquarters, at 501 Fifth avenue at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and Mrs. H. B. Tower was sitting near another window gazing wistfully at passersby in the street below. Mrs. Ina Brevoort Roberts was pounding a typewriter in a dim corner as fast as she could make her fingers fly. Picture of Mr. Bannard and Judge Whitman and buttons bearing their likenesses were strewn about on tables, desks and chairs and fastened at various angles upon the walls of each of the three rooms of the suite.

At six minutes after three a visitor entered and inquired what she could do to help the cause and why something wasn't happening.

"Mrs. William Grant Brown and Mrs. Ruthaufl will be here after a while to pour tea," murmured Mrs. Roberts, "and we hope that lots of the club members and their friends will drop in for a cup and a chat some time during the afternoon."

"Let's go out and get some ice cream soda," suggested the visitor.

"Not a bad idea," replied Mrs. Tower. "My son says that all they seem to do at the men's headquarters is to stand around near the doors asking people to come in and when they get tired of tea to go out and drink it."

Ten minutes later Mrs. Ida Husted Harper was discovered in her private office in the national woman suffrage headquarters at 305 Fifth avenue with a bundle of clippings in her lap.

"It is enough to make one's blood boil," she declared as soon as she had said it was a pleasant day, "to read of an assembly of American women almost all putting their gloves on and then a man who has stated publicly that he does not believe in giving the vote to women. Why, forsooth, did they applaud him? As far as I can make out, it is from the newspaper accounts simply because he said that he believed in having women as members of the Board of Education, and promised to appoint some in case he won the election. I do not think it is worth the trouble to do so, and could find suitable ones who were willing to serve."

"We are capable of administering the great educational system of the largest city in the United States, but we are not capable of voting intelligently. Such is Mr. Bannard's logic, and the women of the Republican clubs all found him. They are going to use that influence they have to win the election of this man. Well, I wish that something could be done to teach women a proper self-respect."

"But some of the Republican club women are anti-suffrage," ventured one of the visitors timidly.

"Then why do they meddle in politics?" demanded Mrs. Harper. "If they are not fit to vote themselves, how can they be fit to dictate as to whether or not others, or why should they seek to influence votes? If I had the time I should like nothing better than to go from one speaker to the other of Greater New York and use whatever influence I possess to wipe out every political club of women within its boundaries."

"Do you know," continued Mrs. Harper, "that there was a man in here a while ago who said he was a political speaker engaged by the Republicans for this campaign. He was a Harvard man who has lived in Colorado for a long time and has thoroughly studied the effects of woman suffrage in that State. He is an enthusiastic believer in it and was most anxious to talk about it in all of his speeches. He told me, however, that when he mentioned the subject up at Republican headquarters he was informed that woman suffrage was a buzz-saw and that he must leave it absolutely alone."

"How horribly mean!" chorused the visitors. "Who is he?"

"I think I won't tell his name," said Mrs. Harper, "because if the papers should print it it might interfere with his own engagements. I have both his name and address here on file, though, and am at liberty to use it for purposes of verification if necessary."

Mrs. Mary Coleman, the suffragette lawyer, said that she thought women's political clubs were nothing more or less than a huge joke.

"I wish some of the women who conducted political meetings last year could have heard what the men said about them afterward," she declared. "Then perhaps they wouldn't be quite so enthusiastic about working for the cause. Why, women don't know anything about practical politics and they never will until they cease to be political nonentities. Most of the men don't even understand the platforms of the different parties. As for this talk about their moral influence in campaigns, it is all hot air, and I don't mind being quoted as saying so."

"My profession causes me to go about among men much more than most women do, and I think men talk to me pretty frankly about a good many things. Many of them are surprised when I try to understand the game of politics. If they did they could prevent the election of some of the men who are so notoriously dishonest and corrupt."

Mrs. Loebinger also exhibited indignation at what she termed the farce comedy which was being played by the women of the Republican clubs.

"It saddens me to see otherwise intelligent women wasting their valuable time in child's play when they might be doing real work for the great cause of woman," she said. "I admire the courage which the English women showed in withdrawing their aid from every political party controlled by men. Surely our American women should not want to be less independent than their sisters across the water."

Women's participation in political campaigns here in New York city reminds me very much of a Jackdaw strutting about in the feathers of other birds, or of a little child parading before a mirror in her mother's long frock. I sincerely trust that no member of our union will be found working on any of the committees of women who are trying to help men in this campaign.

Before coming to the United States he served as Captain in the 18th New York Volunteer Cavalry. At the close of the civil war he reentered the Regular Army as a Captain in the Twenty-third Infantry. During the Spanish war he served as a Major-General in the Volunteer Army. He was retired from the Regular Army on October 11, 1898. Since his retirement he has lived in Washington.

NAMES TO GO ON THE BALLOT

Court of Appeals Decides Several Disputes Arising in This City.

ALBANY, Oct. 27.—The Court of Appeals this afternoon, after listening to arguments, decided that Lindon Bates, the Republican candidate for the Assembly in the Twenty-ninth Manhattan district; Ralph Polks, the Republican candidate for Alderman in the Thirtieth district; Henry S. Goodspeed, the Republican candidate for Assembly in the First Kings district; and Robert Downing, the Republican candidate for Alderman in the Forty-second Kings district, were entitled to have their names also in the Civic Alliance column.

George E. Joseph appeared for the Democratic candidates for these offices. Herbert R. Limberg appeared for the Civic Alliance, and Julius M. Mayers appeared for the Civic Alliance. The decision of the court was announced at the conclusion of the arguments. Chief Justice Cullen saying that the court would not review the Appellate Division's decision on a question of fact.

The court also affirmed the order of the Appellate Division placing the name of Alexander Dreger, a Democratic candidate for Alderman in the Sixty-first Kings district, on the ballot as the Civic Alliance candidate. James F. Martyn, the Republican candidate for Alderman by the Board of Elections and Supreme Court Justice Dickey. The Appellate Division reversed both these decisions.

The Court of Appeals supplemented the decision of the lower courts placing the name of William O. Bodger, a candidate for Municipal Court Justice in Brooklyn, on the ballot as the Civic Alliance candidate. This case was so involved that the court found it necessary to leave the bench and consult before reaching a decision, which was announced from the bench by Justice Warner at 6:30 o'clock to-night.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN.

Mrs. Belmont's Representative Sounding Candidates for the Assembly.

UTICA, Oct. 27.—W. B. Hunter of New York, who is touring the State in behalf of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's fight to gain the right of suffrage for women, was in Utica to-day to meet the various candidates for the Assembly in Oneida county with a view of ascertaining their views on the subject of legislation in favor of suffrage. Mr. Hunter said that he had received enough encouragement on his trip through the State to feel warranted that the question of suffrage will be seriously considered at the next session of the Legislature. He does not pretend to predict the outcome, but he insists that the question is an issue and one which must be met fairly.

Through the western part of the State, he says, there is an evident frankness among the candidates for the Legislature that the people want to amend the Constitution and give women the right to vote it is the people's business and that being elected by the people is reason enough for legislators to consider their wishes in this or any other matter.

COCKRAN WON'T VOTE.

Sails Away Saying That It is a Campaign of Silliness.

W. Bourke Cockran, who has been known to favor oratorically the candidates of several parties, sailed yesterday for Europe by the Cunarder Lusitania much displeased with the Majority campaign. He said:

"I have no questions have come up for consideration. The campaign is one of silliness. There has been no question of personal virtue, but rather one of personal depravity. Mr. Cockran will return to New York with his wife, who has been in Paris since May 20."

Senator Davenport Retires From the Stump Until After Election.

ALBANY, Oct. 27.—Senator Frederick M. Davenport of Oneida county, one of the foremost advocates of the Humanitarian Green alleged distump until after election. He has adopted this course because the Democratic party has used the issue solely for the purpose of capturing the lower house of the Legislature. In many districts Democrats are running on the tickets of their own party and direct primaries tickets as well. While the Senator has not changed his views on this question, he is opposed to lending his name to candidates opposed to his own party.

Herrick and Gaynor at Rapid Transit Meeting.

D-Cady Herrick will speak to-night at a mass meeting to be held in Carnegie Hall, organized by several civic bodies who are advocating a speedy extension of the rapid transit system. Judge Gaynor will also speak at the meeting.

NAMES FOR FIVE DESTROYERS.

They Will Be Known as the Ammen, Trippe, Walke, Patterson and Monaghan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Following the usual custom, Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop to-day assigned names of distinguished naval officers to the five torpedo boat destroyers authorized at the last session of Congress. They will be known as the Ammen, Trippe, Walke, Patterson and Monaghan.

The Ammen was named after Rear Admiral Daniel Ammen, who died in 1898. Admiral Ammen was the designer of the naval ram Katakhdin and was formerly a chief constructor in the navy.

Lieut. John Trippe took a conspicuous part in the engagement before Tripoli in 1804, in which he was severely wounded. He received the thanks of Congress and a sword for his distinguished services.

Rear Admiral Henry Walke was in command of the United States steamship Carondelet in running the batteries of Island No. 10 during the civil war, and in the engagement with the Confederate ram Arkansas in the Yazoo River.

Capt. Daniel T. Patterson commanded the naval forces of New Orleans in 1814 and received the Infantry Medal for his distinguished service. He destroyed the forts and defenses of the Pirate Jean Laffite on Barataria Island.

Ensign John R. Monaghan, while serving with a landing party from the United States ship Philadelphia, was killed in an engagement with the natives near Apia, Samoa, in April, 1899.

ALL IS HARMONY IN KINGS
NOT EVEN COLE IS OUTSIDE THE DEMOCRATIC FOLD.

All Hands Working Now to Win—Speculations as to the Tiger's Intentions Regarding Brooklyn—Little Yet as to the Succession in the Leadership.

The management of the Democratic campaign in Brooklyn is now practically under the joint control of Arthur C. Salmon and former Deputy Police Commissioner Bernard J. York, the former representing the county committee of the organization and the latter the provisional committee of twenty which was appointed in the spring to bring about if possible a working agreement between the late Senator McCarren and his factional opponents in the city campaign.

The provisional committee was unable to avert a crash at the primaries or in the county convention, but Mr. McCarren had the satisfaction a week or so before he was stricken down to see the delegates opposed to him get up on the floor of the city convention and move to make the nominations of his candidates unanimous.

Harmony apparently now reigns in the Democratic camp in Kings county. Under the joint control of Arthur C. Salmon and Bernard J. York, President of the borough, who was probably the most implacable enemy of the dead leader, was closeted in conference with Bernard J. York at Democratic headquarters soon after McCarren had been laid in the grave. Some of the visitors smiled grimly over Cole's presence at the Thomas Jefferson, and there was some speculation as to whether he would butt in when the question of choosing a new leader comes up for settlement.

In spite of all disclaimers there is a wide impression among Democrats that the removal of McCarren from the political arena will make a considerable change in the relations of Tammany with the Brooklyn organization, and some observers predict that there will be less insurmountable obstacles than hitherto to the carrying out of the tiger's will.

Charles F. Murphy himself made the admission recently that he had advised the leaders of the Kings county Democratic party, the anti-McCarren faction, to withdraw from their independent borough and county tickets, and this step on his part was quickly followed by the disappearance of the anti-McCarren ticket from the primary. Murphy denied that Tammany had any design on the autonomy of the sister borough.

All the Assembly district leaders and their lieutenants are at present engrossed in the windup of the campaign and they refuse to be drawn into a discussion in regard to the choice of McCarren's successor. They have all only kind words for Arthur C. Salmon, the veteran treasurer of the organization, and the choice of a new leader will be decided to-day he would probably receive the votes of a large majority of the executive committee.

The local ticket is to be at the polls next Tuesday is regarded as very uncertain and both Mr. Salmon and Mr. York, while generally predicting Democratic success, have so far not given out any estimates of the vote which they expect to carry in a single district. The district leaders vary all the way from 20,000 to 40,000 in their forecasts of the harvest vote and the more optimistic of them say that he will draw nearly as many votes from Bernard as from Gaynor.

The Republicans seem to be absolutely confident of electing their borough and county tickets to the Assembly. Several of the former President of the borough, is also running on the harvest ticket and he has a full set of independent candidates on the county ticket. That Steers at least should be out over McCarren's head, his Democratic rival, is the opinion of some close students of the political game. The Steers-McCarren fight is the most important and hottest in the local canvass. Should the question be sure to eliminate him, he would become, it is believed, an important factor in the adjustment of the party leadership problem. His failure and the defeat of his associates on the county ticket would be sure to eliminate him from consideration as an eligible aspirant for the leadership and add strength to Mr. Salmon's claims.

Daniel J. Carroll, a son of former Supervisor Carroll, who was one of Senator McCarren's chief lieutenants, is a candidate for his vacant place as Democratic executive committee member from the Fourteenth Assembly district. He is also an aspirant for the Senatorial nomination.

Tax Commissioner James H. Tully, president of the Seymour Club, is also a candidate for the leadership in the Fourteenth district.

In some quarters it is surmised that for the purpose of prolonging the harmony movement after election former Justice Augustus Van Wyck, chairman of the provisional committee, might be placed at the head of the organization. He was active in Democratic politics in Kings county thirty years ago and once made a great name for himself as Governor of the State. No factional strife, it is believed, could prevail under a Van Wyck regime.

MINISTER DAWSON'S ORDERS.

To Remain in Santiago, Chile, Until the Aisop Claim is Settled.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Thomas C. Dawson, American Minister to Chile, has been authorized by the State Department to delay his departure from Santiago in order to obtain a settlement of the Aisop claim case, which has been pending between the two Governments since 1885. Mr. Dawson was recently appointed chief of the Latin American bureau of the State Department, but the Department thought it advisable for him to remain in Santiago for a short time in an effort to settle the claim case. During his absence W. T. S. Doyle, the assistant chief, will be in charge of the work of organizing the bureau.

The claim case originated in the loan of money in 1874 by Aisop & Co., an American concern, to the Bolivian Government, in return for the right to work guano deposits. The loan was to be secured by the revenues collected at the custom house at Arica. The loan amounted to more than $1,000,000 gold. Before the arrangements were completed, a result of a war, the control of the custom house at Arica passed from the Bolivian Government to the Chilean Government. The receipts of the custom house were diverted and changes were made in the mining laws of the country, which practically nullified the agreement to repay the loan.

In 1885 the American Minister at Santiago began diplomatic negotiations for the settlement of the claim. Several times the Chilean Government has recognized the justice of the claim and promised to pay it, but has been prevented by various reasons. From 1883 to 1890 Chile was under a serious financial depression. In 1896 Chile again promised to pay the principal and the accrued interest. The case was once before the Chilean Claims Commission, but was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. The Chilean Government is now in a fairly prosperous condition.

Shortly after he was appointed Minister to Chile, Mr. Dawson received complete instructions for the settlement of the case. He has been directed to insist either upon a direct settlement or an arbitration of the matter by the Hague court.

FURNISS MANSION IS GOING

APARTMENT HOUSES TO RISE ON OLD "COUNTRY ESTATE."

Heirs Capitulato to the Real Estate Men After Long Resistance—$800,000 Tract Will Be Carved Into Twenty-five Building Lots—Some History.

The old Furniss mansion in the center of the block bounded by Riverside Drive, West End avenue, Ninety-ninth and 100th streets, is to go the way of other landmarks swallowed up by the growth of the city. Yesterday the Furniss heirs, who for a long time have turned a deaf ear to the importunities of real estate men, decided to accept an offer made by a syndicate composed of Benjamin Mordecai, G. R. Davis, M. J. Wolf and Emanuel Heilner, to buy the old mansion and grounds about it for approximately $800,000.

Contracts have been drawn up by the Cruikshank Company, agents for the estate, and in a few days the deeds will be placed on record. The old house will be razed, the grounds leveled, the trees cut down, and the transformed area cut up into about twenty-five building lots. The tract will be carved into twenty-five building lots.

The Furniss mansion is a rambling three-story structure, built largely of wood. It is still in fair condition, although it has been broken up by the sale of the Hudson River since the early part of the last century. In 1830 or thereabouts William P. Furniss, a prosperous business man, bought a large ground overlooking the Hudson and extending some distance north of what is now Ninety-ninth street. On this land he built the mansion. A lawn sloped to the water's edge, where a small pier and a tiny sheltered cove were fashioned.

This was long before the Hudson River Railroad was thought of, and a half-century past its fourth side, shutting off access to the river, ran the freight trains of the New York Central Railroad. The Furniss no longer cared to occupy the "country house," and leased it to Russell Clark, who lived there for several years. After he moved away Paul Kessler, the dramatist, rented it. For a time he rehearsed his companies in the big drawing room on the second story, and the which at one time commanded a beautiful view of the Palisades.

Then Paul Kessler went elsewhere and the place remained untenanted for a long time. The Furniss heirs sold most of the grounds in small pieces to operators and builders. Last summer the block front facing West End avenue was sold to the A. C. & H. M. Hall Realty Company, which started in to build apartment houses there. Yesterday's transaction wipes out the last remnant of the old estate.

MORE HOURS FOR SCHOOL.

One Superintendent Would Increase Them Nearly One-half.

UTICA, Oct. 27.—A plan to eliminate some of the details from the arithmetic and geography of the public school curriculum developed a hot discussion at to-day's sessions of the Council of the State Association of School Superintendents.

Supt. Frank S. Tisdale of Watertown introduced the discussion, and his plan was to do away with some of the complex problems and fractions that are seldom met with in the ordinary business life and to cut some thirty or forty pages of geographic definitions in order to make room for some of the valuable studies that have in late years served to expand the elementary course.

Supt. R. A. Taylor of Niagara Falls said that the fault was not in the expansion of the curriculum but in the shortening of school hours. He said that there were exactly 1,000 hours in the school year and that this time was too short. He would hold school from 8:30 in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, lengthening the time by nearly one-half.

Supt. Taylor offered a resolution putting the association on record as favoring legislation that would require all cities to maintain night schools, and its adoption disposed of the controversy.

President Schurman of Cornell was the guest of the council this afternoon and gave an informal talk.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE.

Alternative Propositions for Raising Money to Be Offered.

The stockholders of the Atlantic Coast Line company at their annual meeting to be held in Richmond, Va., on November 16 will be asked to assent to an issue of $200,000,000 gold bonds, bearing interest at a rate of not more than 4 per cent.

The bonds will provide for the retirement or payment of the outstanding bonds of the company, for the retirement by exchange of the 4 per cent. certificates of indebtedness in an amount not to exceed $200,000,000 for funding other indebtedness and for carrying out new construction and improvements.

An alternative plan of retiring the certificates of indebtedness will also be presented to the meeting. This alternative plan contemplates the issue of 4 per cent. debenture bonds in an amount equal to the certificates, with a privilege attached of converting them into common stock on such terms as the directors may determine. Under this plan the common stock is to be increased proportionately.

The company, it is said, has no present intention of issuing any of the proposed bonds.

BORROWING ON FALSE ASSETS.

Two Men Arrested in Montreal for Defrauding State Bank of New York.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—Two Americans were arrested here to-day charged with defrauding the State Bank at 378 Grand street, New York, of $2,350. The theft, it is alleged, was committed last spring and the two men, Morris Bronstein and Samuel Heiman, then took refuge in Montreal.

Detective Nelson of the New York Central Office learned that they were receiving mail in Montreal and followed them here soon after his arrival this morning here. He swore out a provisional warrant before the Chief of Police and the two men were arrested this afternoon here and taken to the New York City Jail.

They told him they expected to sail for Europe the last of the week. They were locked up.

It is alleged that on April 27 last the prisoners, who had a cloak and skirt factory in New York, made out false statements of their resources and borrowed $2,350 from the State Bank on their note. When the note became due, they found that they had sold out their business and disappeared.

AERO INSURGENTS BEATEN.

They Concede Bishop's Election, but Intend to Keep Fighting.

The insurgents in the Aero Club of America row conceded yesterday that the regular ticket, headed by Cortlandt Field Bishop, is as good as elected at the annual meeting next Monday. At the club it was reported that he would have 185 proxies out of the 350 members. The anti, whose ticket was headed by the resignation of Alfred Mogstad Jr., the presidential nominee, began to fight, but say they have only "a few votes."

"We did not expect to get elected," said W. J. Hammer, a staunch insurgent yesterday. "It is not office we are after, we want clean administration. We expect to have it."

Big New Fireproof Model Tenement.

Plans were filed yesterday for a six-story model tenement of fireproof construction, to be built from designs of Ernest Flagg, at 601 to 603 West Forty-seventh street, a new field for improvement of the city. It will be erected by the Model Fireproof Tenement Company, of which Shepard K. de Forest is president. The main floor will contain twelve families and several stores, and each of the upper floors will be apportioned into twenty-two suites, to be rented to small families. The building will be a frame of 920 ft. by 100 ft., with a facade of brick, with trimmings of blue stone. It is to cost $120,000.

CAMPECHE INUNDATIONS.

Many Thousand Dollars Worth of Timber Lost—Indian Villages Flooded.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Oct. 27.—Despatches from Campeche and San Juan Bautista say that the inundation of the low lands in the States of Campeche and La Basco, caused by overflows of the rivers, have swept away hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of mahogany logs and other valuable timber belonging to American concerns which are operating there.

The crops upon many plantations have been destroyed. Scores of Indian villages are under water.

ESTATE OF DANIEL C. KINGSLAND ABOUT TO BE DISTRIBUTED.

Forty lawyers were represented on a motion before Supreme Court Justice Truax yesterday for the distribution of the $2,000,000 estate of Daniel C. Kingsland, a real estate man and brother of Ambrose C. Kingsland, once Mayor of New York. Mr. Kingsland died ten years ago and left all his property under his will to his son. The will provided that on the death of the son the property should go to the children of the testator's brothers and sisters.

The son died several years ago and the estate has since been tied up through a contest by other heirs. The litigation has all been settled and there is nothing now to prevent the distribution of the estate.
